CAPT. J. C. HILL, late of the Solo mon Seattnel, is now one of the editors of the De Pere (Wis.) Name. We hope the Captain's voice will be heard loud and full in the interests of the beautiful Fox River Valley, under whose umbrageous trees we were wont to recline in the days gone by. when we were assiduously cultivating the hir, hose, hos question.

Is the western delegates to the State Encampment of the C. A. R. will attend and exert themselves, they can confer the honor of Department Commander on some worthy soldier of the western part of the state. So far, eastern Kaneas men are talked of for the position, and not a word is said in favor of a western man. It is time the "hog east" was letting up on the shild-like, simple westerners. The western soldlers have the power; now let them use it. So far, the office of Department Commander has never come west of Topeka.

IT is said that President-elect Cleveland is displeased at the claborate arrangements that are being made for a demonstration of the occasion of his inaugural address. No doubt he has in mind the ancient Jefferson who rede, his herse to the eapital fence and hitched It, then jumped over the fence, strode through the brambles and briars up to the capital building, and was immediately sworn in as the third President. To the reforming Grover, the august coremonial of inauguration may appear not unlike the change from the simple habits of Rome before the Augustan period to the stately magnificence of the emperors in the decline of the empire. But Stephen G. C. is not running the luangural. It is friends, who have been so long out of power and want a chance to spread. from the Real Retate Separter. It is a well known fact that judicious investment in real estate is the safest and surest road to competence and wealth. The yest majority of the wealthy men of to-day owe their success to real estate investments made either by themselves or their ancestors. Men of small means and small

NUMBER 5

LIBBY'S QUARTERMASTER. CENTRALIA, February 17.—Residing in the little village of Central City, Ill., is a grey-haired old man who should have a place in the history the war for the preservation of the Union. This man did not, however, fight for the Union. He is a born Mississippian, and sympathized with the southern confederacy. The individual of of whom this is written is Andrew Jackson Warner, familiarly known as "Union Jack."

Stored away with his old papers are two commissions signed by Jefferson Davis, one of which is an appoint ment in the confederate mail service and the other is for the quarterma-tership of the famous Libby prisor Before he had time to assume hi duties under the former he was directed to till the office of the latter.
To hundreds of Union prisoners this rebel quartermaster was a bleesing in disguise. Many a bluecoat was enabled to see home and friends through the kindness of Uncie Jack. True, his heart did not beat for the cause, but it did go out in morey to the starving and the sick. He is now living in a hous wherein dwelt four generati the same family.

ANDERSONVILLE.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Feb. 17.—Quite a sensation was created here by the conduct of a party of excursionists from fewa who were on their way to view the site of Andersonville, the confederate prison pen. A large crowd was assembled at the depot when an address of welcome was made to the Iowans, to which a suitable response was made, and then for ten minutes there was a mingling of eliterns and excursionists, during ten minutes there was a mingling of citizens and excursionists, during which time many a pocket flask was appealed to. This was brought to an end by a signal to start, and as the train pulled out the lowans joined lustily in singled, "We'll hang Jeff Davis on a sour apple tree." For a moment the citizens stood dumb, and then burst forth a yell of execution such as has salion because the deep desuch as has seldom been sent after de parting viators. One indignant ex-confederate proposed that a telegram be sent to the next town to head the offenders off and mob them, but better counsel prevailed.
